Content Creation: Archiving And Indexing Data For Research For scientific research to be of any on-going value it needs to be traceable and searchable (for both the internal libraries of pharmaceutical and healthcare organizations and when accessing the libraries of research institutes and public repositories). This means digital archiving, and the search element requires effective digital indexing. When indexing data, with the purpose that data will need to be searched for by others (as with an archive or a research file), it is important that each d
