Hence, as well as embedded ethics, data governance is also required for data security. Furthermore, it is increasingly common for data to be shared for research collaboration. Therefore, a framework is needed to promote common understanding between companies as to what can permissibly be done with shared data. As to what is meant by 'data governance', perhaps the most straightforward definition is 'rules and norms of handling data'. Rules should lead to policies and procedures that direct the safety, quality, and proper use of data. Data governance refers to the overseeing...
